Church School Training Course For Leadership

The churches of Corning, Painted Post and Addison are uniting in the setting up of a training school for our church school leaders. The courses for this year will deal with methods and materials of teaching. The school will be divided into the following groups with these competent leaders for teachers:

Beginner-Primary — Mrs. George Allen of Bath; Junior—Rev. Lorrimer Crippen, Baptist Church of Corning; Intermediate-Senior—Rev. John Annas, First Methodist of Corning; Adult — Rev. Leo Engler, Grace Methodist, Corning.

Rev. C. W. Vandenburg of Painted Post will act as dean of the school and Rev. M. C. Johns of Addison will be chairman of the worship service.

This school will be run for six months, with one meeting a month. The first meeting will be held in the First Presbyterian Church of Corning, and is open to anyone who is interested in learning more about teaching in our church schools.

In order that we might defray the expenses of the school it will be necessary to charge a registration fee of 25 cents per person for the entire school. It might be very profitable for the churches if they paid this small fee for their teachers for the benefit they will derive from it.

If there are any questions concerning the school if you will call Rev. M. C. Johns he will endeavor to answer them for you.

Susan St. John Young was born in New York City, September 14, 1867, the daughter of William Harvey and Frances (Frazee) St. John. She resided in Hammondsport during her girlhood and attended the Hammondsport school.

She was united in marriage to Ray Young of Rathbone October 22, 1890. Shortly afterward the young couple established their home in that village where her life was one of devotion and service to her family. They continued to reside in Rathbone until 1912 when they moved to Stony Brook. Possessing a helpful and happy disposition Mrs. Young made many warm friends who deplore her passing. Her loss will be keenly felt in the community where she was active in the affairs of the Methodist Church and Ladies Aid Society.

MILESTONES

This week marks a milestone in the office of the Addison Advertiser, for ten years ago the writer became publisher of this paper. Ten years is not a long time to look back upon, but after all it is a tenth of a century and a great many changes are inevitable in a tenth of a century. There have been many changes in the village of Addison and in the Addison paper during this period. Many new people have walked into jobs in the office in that time and many have passed to other fields—a few have stayed on. The dean of the staff is still George Smith who was a fixture on the paper in the days when it was the Steuben News chain owned by the late Mr. Seeley of Hammondsport.

During this ten years of ownership we have tried to make this a better newspaper; sometimes we think we have succeeded. We invite our readers to be the judge, however, and would welcome any of them digging up copies they received ten years ago to compare with the paper they get today. If today's paper does not have more interesting material than that of a decade ago, then we have not achieved the goal we started for in 1929.

There have been some things which we have chronicled with keen regret the past ten years—many fine people who lived in Addison then have now passed on to a richer life. The factory which had given employment to skilled wood-workers for about four score years is now but a memory of some better days for Addison. No longer does the Advertiser carry advertisements from such progressive merchants as Horace Crane, S. M .LaGrange, H. P. Smith, Isaac Magoon and Lewis Davis. Yet, looking into the past does not help the future and the publishers of this paper have honestly tried to make it a community organ dedicated to the service and betterment of those who reside in the greater community in which it circulates.

After all we should not dwell too much on the past, even on anniversaries. The mistakes cannot be rehabilitated and the triumphs must speak for themselves. But the future is something different and always to be looked forward to with hope for betterment. There is always the spark of adventure in what lies around the next corner, and we must key ourselves to enjoy all of the best in what comes tomorrow, "pressing towards the mark" as we live the days which come.

By a strange coincidence our tenth anniversary is paralleled by the tenth anniversary of the great depression. Our wish for the future is wrapped up in the hope that the next ten years will bring a far greater measure of prosperity for our readers than they have been able to enjoy in the last decade. And with that hope goes a wish for health and happiness which can overflow into an abundant will to make this community a better place in which to live. If the Advertiser can continue to contribute to community betterment in the next ten years we shall have filled a need that no other agency can accomplish. For just as a community without a church is a terrible place in which to live, so a community without a newspaper is a dead place in which to stay.

HEARTLESS SUBTERFUGE

It is interesting to note that the city of Rochester has thrown out Bingo games, lock, stock and barrel. No longer will this sugar-coated breeder of gambling be allowed to flourish in that great city.

We once heard a clergyman defend the game on the surprising premise that "Jesus Christ was a gambler, and gambled His life". That is one of the greatest fallacies ever pronounced. Christ did not gamble His life, He "gave" for the redemption of the sins of all in the world, just as a devoted mother would pay out the last of her slender savings to pay the fine of her son and save him from going to jail.

Gambling is something altogether different. Gambling is a game of chance in which one man can only win if one other, or others lose. It has been a symbol of character destruction since the day it was recorded that thieves cast lots for the garments of Jesus who hung on the cross.

Because it is destructive of character the people of this state should refuse to legalize it when they vote next Tuesday on the question of allowing pari-mutuel betting at race tracks in this state. Legalizing race track betting may not affect you or your family directly, but in voting NO on this question you may be and will be protecting others who are weak minded enough to lay down money they nor their families can afford to lose, on the long chance. When a state legalizes chance for revenue as now proposed in New York, it becomes about as heartless as the parents who would pull their children's teeth to sell for pearls.

DO YOU WANT GOVERNMENT ECONOMY?

It cannot be too often repeated that we will have economy in government when the people want it—and not until then.

What this means is that economy must begin with the taxpayer. It means that we must turn thumbs down on public spending for spending's sake.

It means that there must be an end to spending the tax money contributed by all the people for purposes which effect only a fovored few.

People who talk most bitterly about excessive government spending are often the first to whoop it up in favor of an appropriation for their town or state. And the result is the greatest peacetime debt in the history of this or any other nation, and a tax burden that is crushing industries, to the detriment of employment, productive investment, and economic progress.

The cost of government can be cut. The budget can be balanced, and a program looking into the reduction of the national debt can be put into effect, if thrifty citizens demand it. But we will first have to make up our minds to the fact that it is impossible to get something for nothing from government. That may not be pleasant medicine to take, but it is the only way that national bankruptcy and the eventual collapse of our free country can be prevented. Help won't come from spendthrift politicians.

THE RIGHT TO MAKE A PROFIT

Philip A. Benson, President of the American Bankers Association, recently observed that one essential of recovery is to encourage "private capital to engage in new ventures and the extension of existing industries. 'Risk' capital flourishes in an atmosphere of confidence, not where hostility exists. It will venture if there is an expectation of a profit and when its right to seek a profit is recognized".

There is not enough general recognition of the fact that "risk" capital, at the beginning, is usually the only capital which is willing to take a chance on some venture that may produce a great new employing industry of the future. Certainly that truth is well illustrated in the immediate past. The automobile, the radio, the telephone, the airplane — they are all commonplace today, but not many years ago they were widely regarded as fantastic dreams. They could not attract conservative capital looking for gilt-edge investments. Without "risk" capital which was willing to take a long chance in the hope of substantial profit they could never have been developed far beyond the curiosity stage—and the millions of jobs, the gigantic wealth, and the untold opportunities they created would never have existed.

The legislative trend of recent years has gone against all the rich experience of the past. We have said, in effect, to the prospective investor of "risk" capital: "Go ahead and take a big chance—if you lose you can absorb the losses yourself, and if you win, we'll take most of the profits in taxes." Is it any wonder that capital is dormant, that industry at large is marking time instead of going ahead, and that few inventions can be seen in the industrial horizon? When you drive "risk" capital into hiding, you virtually make industrial progress impossible.

TEACHING BETTER FARMING

At the recent annual meeting of the American Cooperative Institute, considerable discussion was given to plans for establishing courses on cooperative marketing of agricultural products in agricultural colleges and high schools.

That idea deserves attention among educators. A very considerable percentage of young Americans plan to devote their lives to farming. And it seems certain that the most important development in agriculture in the last two decades has been the rapid progress, in both size and influence, made by the farm marketing co-ops. Certainly the immensely important cause of better times for agriculture would be well served if our educational system were to give the farmers of tomorrow a thorough groundwork in the principles of marketing cooperations.

"CLASS" TAXATION

One of the pressing problems confronting the next regular session of Congress will be to find ways and means of bringing government expenditures nearer to balance with government income. Immensely important as this neglected problem has been for years, it becomes even more vital in the light of apparently necessary increases in appropriations for the national defense.

And when Congress tackles taxation, there is still another phase of the issue which needs examination and action. That is the so-called "nuisance" and "class" taxes. We have had a wearying number of these in the past decade, and their effect on business, to put it mildly, has been paralytic. Too often have legislators with an axe to grind used the power to tax as the power to destroy. And we see the fruits of such a policy now, in industrial stagnation and continuing widespread unemployment.

It should be the first axiom of government that "class' and "punitive" taxation should never be employed, under any circumstance, to hamstring legitimate business. The burdens of taxation should fall equitably upon all.

YEAH! MAN!

How, What and Why

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Storing Apples

C. T. M. asks about storing apples in a cellar that has a furnace.

R. M. Smock of the pomology department replies: "Because the cellar is probably warm, it will be difficult to keep the apples in good condition more than one or two months. If you must keep them in the cellar, wrap the apples individually in paper or possibly wax them.

"Have you thought about burying the apples outdoors under straw, which is perhaps covered with 12 inches of dirt to prevent freezing? You may find this more successful than storing the apples in the cellar."

Peach Twig Find Water?

Mrs. J. S. D. asks: "Please explain why the peach twig bends in the hands of supposedly, 'gifted' persons who locate water wells. I don't believe in it, but have seen the twig bend. Does it have anything to do with the presence of water?

Professor A. M. Goodman of the department of agricultural engineering replies: "We have sent you a statement from the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, which at one time investigated this. It says in part:

"The use of a forked twig, or so-called divining rod, to locate minerals, find hidden treasure, detect criminals, and other purposes, is a curious superstition that has been discussed since the middle of the 16th century. At one time it began to be used as a water-finder.

"To all inquiries the U. S. Geological Survey gives the advice not to expend any money for the services of any 'water witch' or for the use or purchase of any machine or instrument devised for locating underground water or other minerals."

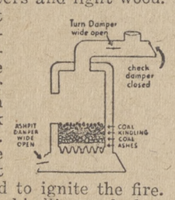
HEATING HINTS .. by John Barclay

BUILDING a fire is a very simple job but, as in everything else, there is a right and wrong way of doing it. From my experience, the quickest and easiest way to light a fire is this:

First of all, if there is a layer of ashes on the grates leave it there. About two inches of ashes on the grates help a lot.

Then spread about two inches of coal uniformly over the ashes.

On top of this fresh coal put a good charge of kindling, consisting of newspapers and light wood.



Be sure that the Turn Damper in the smoke-pipe and the Ashpit Damper are wide open and the Check Damper closed. This will create the strong draft which is needed to ignite the fire.

Now light the kindling and when it is burning freely, slowly add more coal. The kindling will ignite the fresh coal both above and below it, and you can then add more coal and thus quickly build up a good deep fire.

Occasionally you may find, when the kindling wood begins to burn, that smoke starts coming out through the crevices around the furnace doors. This is due to the fact that the chimney, being cold, does not provide sufficient draft to carry off the smoke. This condition can be quickly remedied by opening wide the slide in the fire door—or by partially or entirely closing the ashpit damper—or by a combination of the two. (1)

AS I SEE THE NEWS

By L. A. Wier

The three hundred mile "safety belt" thrown around all of South America and all of North America except Canada at the recent Panama Conference may turn out to be the beginning of a new era in our relations with Latin America.

When the Roosevelt Administration took office the "good neighbor" policy was formulated and until very recently the President and Secretary Hull have taken great pains to abide by it conscientiously. There was a very good reason for this. We saw in Central and South America a potential market to absorb part of our "over-production". Our export trade had been suffering badly, partly because we had stopped our loans to Europe, partly because of the general economic slump throughout the world and partly because of the higher tariff wall we raised at the beginning of the depression.

In Latin America there was the possibility of regaining some of this lost export business and the Administration bent every effort to realize on it. It was obvious that the dollar diplomacy of other years had embittered many of our neighbors to the South against what was called the colossus of the North. Of course, our biggest rivals in international trade, Great Britain and Germany, as well as others, had capitalized upon this feeling of mistrust for the United States and had, as a result, built up their own trade in Central and South America. To counteract this, the good neighbor policy was formulated, and the Monroe Doctrine, though not abandoned, was not emphasized.

Now, however, Germany is cut off from this trade by the British blockade and the British themselves are preoccupied maintaining that blockade and otherwise prosecuting the war. Our two greatest rivals, therefore are removed from the market. Will we continue the good neighbor policy no wthat the purpose of it has, at least temporarily disappeared?

It looks now as though the answer to that question would be no. At the Panama Conference the good neighbor policy now that the significantly, not mentioned and the three hundred mile "safety belt" was adopted. The idea of the safety belt was presented to the Conference by the American delegate, Sumner Wells, who has always been an advocate of strong policy toward the countries south of the Rio Grande. It can be enforced only by the navy and air fleet of the United States. It is, therefore, a warning to the rest of the world that the United States intends to protect this hemisphere from interference by any power outside of it, and so has been justly described as an extension of the Monroe Doctrine.

When so much of the Government and Press is concerned with how we can protect ourselves from Hitlerism and Stalinism by legislation and official policies, it is comforting to know that some practical steps are being taken along lines that will be effective. One of these is the carrying out of the Federal slum clearance program. This is one of the real ways to strengthen our diplomacy and although it is getting very little publicity, it does deserve attention.

In New York another low rent housing project is being opened and the tenants are moving in from substandard housing. When Queensbridge House is entirely completed it will house over three thousand families, nearly twelve thousand people, in decent healthful surroundings. These families with incomes of about eleven hundred to fourteen hundred dollars a year, will pay about the same for modern apartments that they formerly paid for the same number of rooms in run-down tenements, in most cases about twenty to twenty-five dollars a month for four or five rooms.

This is the nation's largest housing development costing over thirteen million of which the Federal Government furnishes ninety per cent and the City of New York furnishes ten. But the millions that such projects cost yield large dividends. We all know that the slums breed crime and that they are the most expensive areas for the city to provide with police and fire protection. But slums are also expensive in another respect. People who live in degrading conditions naturally feel that there is little in society, as they know it, that is worth protecting. The much boasted of American Standard of living cannot mean the same thing to them that it does to the Chamber of Commerce speakers who use the term. Getting these people out into decent surroundings gives them a stake that they can feel is worth fighting for. It is dangerous to have in any community a large group who can, rightly or not, feel that they have nothing to lose, whatever happens.

But while the cities are now getting some relief from the slums, the rural communities are not. Probably the problem of the rural slum is more urgent than the city slum but it has received very little attention. Poor housing conditions are more serious on the farms and in the villages for there are not the facilities of the community house,

Washington Snapshots by JAMES PRESTON

Armistice Day this year will be celebrated in peace only in America.

This announcement from the White House failed to receive the headlines accorded the latest bulletins from Europe.

But the story back of that announcement is one that has a strong appeal to every American home.

It means that America is at peace; that it intends to celebrate that peace, and that America has no intention of breaking that peace.

Such is not the case in Europe. In France and England this November 11, men will march. Flags will wave. Drums will rattle and bands will play. But this European military display will be in hope of a new Armistice yet to come. In America it will be for an Armistice already achieved.

This is significant in the light of the unpublished debate which is going on in the cloak rooms of the Capitol. More and more the off the record talk is to the effect that this is not America's war and that the only sure way by which America can become involved is for America to talk herself into war.

To some, at first, the thought of the United States talking itself into war, was ridiculous. But after some six weeks of war this statement provokes few laughs. It is now recognized by many in Washington as the most dangerous war factor with which the country must deal.

It comes about this way:

The average American is interested in his wife, his children, his home, his job, his town and his favorite hobby, whether that be the golf course, the fishing tackle or the like.

Mr. Average American also is honest. He pays his debts. He goes to church. He gives to charity and he sympathizes with those who have drawn a less favorable place in life than he.

This background completely disarms him mentally for an appreciation of understanding of the "power politics" of the restless millions of Europe. He attempts to understand the European in the way that he would analyze a new neighbor in the community and thereby he makes a mistake.

During the neutrality debate in the Senate figures were placed in the Congressional Record. They impressed more than one of the debonair Capital City. Here is what they revealed:

In the some 155 years of American independence, the British Empire has fought 54 wars, lasting a total of 102 years or has been at war with someone for 68 per cent of the time that the United States has existed.

During this same period of 155 years the French have fought 53 wars. These lasted a total of 99 years. In other words France has been fighting somebody 66 per cent of the time that America was developing from an infant nation to the greatest and most prosperious nation in the history of the world.

And the man who compiled these figures pointed out that during a quarter of a century of this period England and France were fighting each other.

More than one agreed that this was the best evidence submitted to the Senate that war is chronic in Europe.

And military experts in Washington are snickering quietly at Americans who are worried over a possible Hitler victory. They point out that the crushing of the world's greatest Empire (the British) and the world's Empire No. 2 (the French) is accomplished more easily on paper or vocally than on the battle field or the high seas.

To the Americans who are fearful of a Hitler-Stalin invasion in the event of a doubtful German-Russion victory they recall that Chinese parable that: He who crushes two giants is himself well crushed.

These same miliary experts laugh outright at those who are apprehensive of American safety in the event of the surrender of the British fleet. The reason for the laughter is, they say, that the British fleet will never surrender. They point out that at the end of the World War the Kaiser's High Seas Fleet surrendered between lines of British and American men of war—each line of warships being stronger than the fleet of ships being surrendered. And, at the time of the surrender there were two Allied ships, with loaded guns, ready to open up at any moment upon any German ship which might show the sligtest sign of fight.

Even though many more British warships are destroyed, and military experts say this will happen, Hitler and his Red ally will have no fleet able to enforce a surrender of the war dogs which fly tho British flag.

TRY CLASS ADS—THEY BRING RESULTS

Addison Dairymen's Anti-Strike Vote Registered Wednesday

Renken dairymen hear Knudson speak for company point of view — Decide misunderstanding of LaGuardia plan causes present unrest—Plan to form company relations group among producers of vicinity—Annual meet November 11.

Addison Milk Producers met last Wednesday night and decided that inasmuch as insufficient information was at hand relative to milk marketing agreements between Mayor LaGuardia and producers, that this would not be a good time to strike. And so there was no strike of dairymen in this vicinity last Thursday morning as in other parts of the state. Francis Kane, secretary of the producers group here outlined what was being done in the North Country where farmers went on a one-day strike in protest over the September milk price.

Misunderstanding

The plan to strike arose over a misunderstanding and to varying interpretations of the LaGuardia agreement. It was believed by many in this vicinity that under the agreement they would receive $2.15 for September milk and when checks for only $2.08½ arrived, the producers thought they had a principle to fight for. However, when it was learned that there was no such agreement figure, the producers realized there was a misunderstanding and hence agreed not to strike with those from the North Country.

Good Result

One good result of the strike talk meetings here will be the formation of a cooperative group to represent the producers and to discuss with Renken Company officers any changes in policy or misunderstandings such as the present crisis created.

Leon Andrews presided as chairman of Wednesday's meeting. Francis Kane was secretary. There were 55 voting members of the producers group present and 92 at the meeting altogether. Mr. Kane presented John and Edward Knudson of the Renken organization. The former is general manager for plants of the company.

Kane Outlines Plan

Mr. Kane outlined the idea behind the present meeting by telling of the Dairy Union striking for $2.35 in August and of their movement gaining momentum. He told of a conversation with Mr. Renken at the time when $2.15 was promised for milk. And he said many farmers felt that in receiving only $2.08½ for September milk they were not getting their just due.

Knudson Against Strike

John Knudson said in part: "I do not fix the price of milk. There is a misunderstanding on the facts. It is not a matter of price for six cents more per hundred will not make a big difference on any of your checks, but it is a matter of agreement. The dealer does not fix the price, for you voted to place this in the hands of the government.

"If all poolers had paid into the pool you would have received $2.19 for September milk instead of the sum $2.15 which you believed you would get and the $2.08½ you actually received. As a matter of record Renken actually paid $2.40 into the pool and the differential betwen that sum and what you received had to be made up for those who did not pay in and they are the ones you want to get after. In disputes of this kind, let's have an impartial judge and abide by his decision and not strike".

Questions from the audience, addressed to Mr. Kane were, "Why should we take up the Dairy Union cause?" and "We are out of the bargaining agency now, so what kick have we got coming?" Franklin Ripley pointed out that as long as "we are fighting among ourselves how can we get anywhere. We are only a drop in the bucket but bigger movements have started in smaller groups. I'm not agitating strike. If it is time for striking let us agree and do it. We have been living on promises long enough."

The question was asked if the local producers had the support of Osceola, Westfield and other Renken plants. Mr. Kane said they have not met to take any action.

Protect Market

Mr. Knudson again took the floor and said, "The consumer really sets the price. You want to protect your fluid price. Your market in New York is among the poorer people who cannot pay high prices for milk. If you have too high a price you will kill your own market. In striking you may receive immediate help but for a long range planning you would be harmed. The consumer turns to substitutes and it is hard to wean him from them when you again ship milk into the market. The dealer is your friend and think of him as such. Renken has been fair to you all the way through. There is $215,000 lacking in the pool for producers."

Cost of Distribution

He was asked what the pooling expenses were and said to the best of his knowledge it was approximately three-fourths of a cent per 100 pounds. He was then asked why the prices in the lower brackets are so low and replied that market conditions, the price of cheese and butter and like commodities govern price of milk. The cheese markets are in the west and they can produce cheaper than in New York State. Mr. Kundson was then asked where $1.06 milk goes and replied he wished he knew for Renken does not handle any of this. He was then asked why the spread between producer and consumer is so great and replied that in New York the cost of milk is 14c per quart and Dr. Leland Spencer of Cornell has figured that it costs four and one-half cents to deliver a quart of milk. There are many expenses in delivery which have to be met.

Against Strike

Mr. Kane summed up the cause for the meeting by saying that 41 voted for striking Monday and to support the Dairy Farmers Union. He asked if the farmers were justified in asking $2.15. Upon returning from telephoning Central New York, he stated they recommended the one-day strike as a protest. The concensus of opinion of Wednesday's meeting was that the group should No. 2—ADDISON DAIRYMEN .... not go along on the one-day strike and the plan for it was abandoned.

It was then that the proposal to ask producer representatives from the various plants to meet here to perfect an organization to meet with Renken executives on matters of policy was made. Mr. Knudson spoke in favor of such an organization and felt sure Renken executives would favor such a group.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Cooperative Organization will be held Saturday, November 11 in the Grange Hall. The Association will furnish bread, rolls, oyster soup, coffee and milk. Each member is asked to bring one item of food.

Resolutions of respect were taken in the death of William Widger, a member of the board of directors of the cooperative. Copies of the resolution will be spread on the minutes and sent to the relatives of the late Mr. Widger.

Farm Leaders Launch Membership Campaign

The hundred seventy-five committeemen of the Steuben County Farm Bureau meet Thursday and Friday at Canisteo and Bath for the purpose of launching the annual membership campaign, which is expected to enroll in 1940 a larger membership than any recent year.

Chairman of the Canisteo meeting Thursday evening is Leon Dennis, vice president of the association, and presiding at the meeting Friday night in the Bath Grange Hall is Clair Bennett of Howard.

The speaker at both meetings is to be William Knepshield of Greenwood, who gives an illustrated talk an Arabia, which country he recently visited in the employ of an English Oil Company.

In announcing the campaign, A. E. Scudder, chairman of the farm bureau board, states that the trend in farm bureau membership in recent years has been upward, that in 1936 there were 919 enrolled as compared to 1233 in the current year.

This increased registration is due, according to Mr. Scudder, to the fact that the farm bureau program and the services rendered have been constantly improved. The campaign ends November 13.

Milk Dealer-Producer Plan Is Outlined

Usually, a general breakdown in milk prices to producers in a given market is due to one of two causes; (1) an inequitable situation as between dealers; or (2) failure to maintain proper equities as between producers.

The marketing plan in operation in New York under Order No. 27 and State Official Order No. 126 is primarily designed to overcome both of these objectionable conditions.

Equities as between dealers are maintained by a plan through which all dealers pay the same prices for milk of the same quality for a given utilization. This is accomplished through what is known as the classified price plan. The classified price plan was developed by producers and producer organizations as a means of getting more than manufactured prices for milk going into fluid milk and fluid cream channels. Under this plan, every dealer is obliged to pay the same prices as all other dealers for milk that is used as fluid cream and for each of the other various utilizations, including ice cream, evaporated milk, butter and cheese. Every dealer is free to select his own utilization of product, so that all dealers are on the same basis and none can justly claim any advantages or disadvantages as compared with other dealers.

Equity as between producers is accomplished through what is known as the Producer Settlement Fund, under a market-wide pooling arrangement. It is quite obvious that some dealers will have a higher percentage of their milk in the more valuable utilizations than other dealers. It is the duty of the office of the Market Administrator, on the 10th of each month to secure from all dealers a complete report on all milk received and all utilization of that milk, and between the 10th and the 14th of the month to determine the total amount of milk in each utilization, the value of all that milk and the total average blended value of all milk delivered to approved plants for the marketing area. Some dealers will have a higher blended value than others, but all must pay at least the minimum blended price to all producers for milk of the same quality. A dealer with higher than the average market value pays the difference between his blended value and the blend of the entire market into the Producer Settlement Fund the difference between his blended value and the average for the entire market.

This means that all producers get at least the same minimum prices for milk of the same quality, regardless of whether at the moment they happen to be selling to a high utilization or a low utilization dealer. It takes away the incentive for producer groups to bid one against the other for the fluid markets, thereby undermining each others' prices, with the resulting disastrous effects that we have all seen on too many occasions in years gone by.

In brief, this plan does establish equity as between dealers and between producers, and thereby makes possible the maintenance of a stable price structure for producers. At the same time, it makes it possible for them to continue in business and to insure a permanent source of high quality milk at reasonable prices for the consuming public.

Genevieve Robbins Was Wed to Elklandite Last Saturday

One of the prettiest of the fall weddings was that solemnized last Saturday morning, October 28, in the Presbyterian Manse here when Miss Genevieve Robbins became the bride of John Orvek, of Elkland, Pa. The couple were united by the Rev. John Axtell, Presbyterian pastor for Addison.

Mrs. Orvek was attended by her lifelong girl friend, Miss Marian L. Roach of Tuscarora Street and the groom was attended by Chester Piecuch, also of Elkland, Pa.

The bride wore a gown of burgundy colored material with a black reefer coat and accessories to match. She wore a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Her attendant was gowned in black with a raspberry colored coat and black hat and accessories. She also wore a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Robbins, parents of the bride entertained members of the wedding party and immediate families at a breakfast at their home on Tuscarora Street. Mrs. Anne Orvek, mother of the groom and Merle Robbins, brother of the bride were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Orvek left for a honeymoon trip to the western part of the state and upon their return will make their home after November 10 at their home in Elkland, where the groom is employed in the tannery.

The bride is a graduate of Addison High School, class of 1936 and was employed by Blakeslee the jeweler. Mrs. Orvek is a graduate of Galeton High.

Mrs. Orvek was entertained at a pre-nuptial kitchen shower given by Miss Roach and also at a variety shower given by her mother. The newlyweds have the best wishes of many friends in Addison.

This Week in Sports

Addison won its second consecutive touch football league championship last Wednesday afternoon by trouncing Avoca 26 to 0 here. Last year's trophy was quite nice and will have company with the one earned this year. Incidentally wagers are being made in high school that Avoca will not play Addison next year.

Football games to notice this week-end; Columbia at Cornell, Michigan State at Syracuse, Alabama at Kentucky, Army at Notre Dame, Harvard at Boston University, Dartmouth at Yale, Duke at Georgia Tech, Marquette at Duquesne on Friday night, Rice at Fordham at Polo Grounds, West Virginia at Georgetown, Harvard at Princeton, Providence at Holy Cross, Michigan at Illinois, Iowa at Purdue, Lafayette at New York U, Northwestern at Minnesota, Navy at Pennsylvania Indiana at Ohio State, Maryland at Penn State, Pittsburgh at Temple, St. Bonaventure at Canisius on Sunday, Alfred at St. Lawrence Texas at Southern Methodist, Tennessee at Louisiana State, Texas Christian at Baylor and Union at Williams.

Congratulations to Cornell and the Big Red Team. That sure was a thrilling exhibition of all that is great in football that they gave Saturday in Columbus, O. with Ohio State as opponent. Cornell now remains one of the very few big teams in the east undefeated and untied. Bill Stern said Sunday that Cornell will receive a Bowl bid but Coach Snavely announced it would not be accepted.

The thrill of that second quarter when Cornell was 14 points behind and three touchdowns were scored in five minutes for one of the most exciting periods in football this season.

Poor old Syracuse, highly touted before the opening of the season has had a disastrous year. Bill Orange managed to eke out a six to six tie with Penn State Saturday.

Holy Cross took Colgate's Red Raiders across 27 to 7 for another. The old razzle dazzle of Andy Kerr has failed to impress opponents this season.

Detroit is making a bid for the 1940 Olympics in case Finland is forced to cancel. However, feeling is that the races would not amount to much with France, England and Italy out of the running owing to war.

A good old knock down and drag out fight marked the N. Y. U.-Georgia game in New York Saturday and police had to intervene to stop the fight. One seldom hears of the things nowadays, but they used to be quite prevalent in days of old.

Tomorrow is slated in baseball history. The Freeman's Journal Press in Cooperstown, home of baseball, is issuing a book "One Hundred Years of Baseball". This contains history, biographical sketches of famous players, equipment changes and rule changes and is a general encyclopedia of sports.

The Grandstander was among those at the Alfred-Ithaca game Saturday night. A blinding snowstorm blew down across the field just before game time. And the players played in a sea of mud. Maurice Robbins, listed on the program as Painted Post, but of this village, played end in the last quarter for the Ithacans and acquited himself in a creditable manner. Alfred won 18 to 6.

By the way there are other games being played at some of the major colleges. For instance Syracuse defeated Penn State at cross country, Pitt defeated Fordham and Yale defeated Navy at Soccer.

Agitation is underway to have the goal posts put back on the goal line as in professional football instead of 10 yards back of the goal line as at present. The argument is that it will help put football back where it belongs, into a kicking game.

Henry Armstrong and Ceferino Garcia will fight for the middleweight championship February 23 under the auspices of the Hollywood Post, American Legion. Garcia is recognized champ in New York and California with Hostak holding the National Boxing Association title.

February 9 promises a good fight when Arturo Godoy meets Joe Louis. Godoy beat Galento twice. He hails from Buenos Aires.

Dr. Horace E. Auringer is in New York where he is attending a convention of Railroad physicians of New York and New England being held in the Hotel Commodore. He will also attend a dinner of Erie Railroad physicians while in New York.

Farmers To Talk On Radio Nov. 8

The varied program of the Steuben County Farm Bureau, the many services that are offered and the numerous projects that are featured, will be discussed in a talk to be given from W E S G Wednesday noon, November 8, in which several officers will participate.

Another subject to receive major attention is the dairy program of which the dairy herd improvement and bull associations are important features, the annual Dairy Banquet, Tour and Convention, as well as the investigations in pasture improvement and production of quality hay.

This program which begins at 12:15 November eight, is dedicated to the most successful year of farm bureau history in Steuben county.

OPEN LETTER

To the Voters of Addison and Vicinity:

On November 7th you are being asked to go to the polls to cast your vote for your favorite candidate. This is by Constitution your privilege.

As it happens, this Election Day you are being asked to decide something far more important than the destiny of your candidate. The State is asking you to decide whether or not it shall enter into the gambling business. If ever you were called upon to cast your vote for an important issue you are now. This pari-mutuel gambling amendment is one of the most diabolical Bills ever passed by our Legislature in Albany and now it is your opportunity to kill once and for all this bill which would bring a never-to-be-forgotten blight upon the people and the honor of this state.

Those favoring this bill will with much emphasis try to show how great will be the income to our state from the tax on gambling; but it has been proven that the average gain of the states having this form of tax has been only $455,000 a year, this would not even pay the salaries of the men required to collect and run the gambling business for the state.

Aside from the income for the state, place in the balance the evil race track gambling and the sad consequences ensuing from it, the broken homes, sorrow and despair, loss of jobs from dishonesty and lack of interest in the work, and the shockingly lowered moral standards of the crowds frequenting the race track, and you cannot wish to see such things in this state.

This amendment must be defeated! The welfare of the state depends upon it, the future happiness of the people depends upon it, and the honor of the state hangs upon the defeat of the pari-mutuel gambling amendment. The shame and stigma attached to such a bill in this state would hang over the people forever. You the voter can help defeat this bill by going to the polls on November 7th and voting "NO" to the only amendment on the ballot. Unless upper New York carries a large vote the city of New York will pass this amendment. Can you be depended upon to do your part by voting "NO" to legalized gambling in our state?

Signed,
Rev. M. C. Johns,

Since Mr. King assumed office he has been required to handle more murder cases and more automobile fatality cases than any of his predecessors. I AWAIT YOUR DECISION

GEORGE A. KING

Dear Voter:

For weeks I have been engaged in preparation for the trial of one of the most important cases in the history of Steuben County. My oath of office demanded that I give it consideration to the exclusion of all other interests and I have done my duty to the fathers and mothers, and to the daughters of this county, with all the vigor and faithfulness at my command.

There is no time left in which to meet you, to discuss the work of my office the past three years or to express my heartfelt appreciation of the support you have given me and I am leaving my candidacy for District Attorney in your hands, content to rest on my record and on the fairness of your judgment.

If you approve of the work I have done to make Steuben a safer and better place in which to live, if you wish me to continue to guard you and your children from evil-doers, then I will appreciate deeply your vote on Election Day.

the clinic, the hospital or the services of the social service agencies, all of which the slum dweller in the city has close at hand whenever the need arises.

Of course, relatively sparsely settled areas never can have the advantages of a city, but they can have more relief from oppressive conditions than they have been receiving. Rural communities have in the past tended to oppose such measures as slum clearance on the ground that the benefit would accrue only to the cities. And this has been true. But instead of opposition, the small towns and farms should offer the suggestion that the benefits be extended to them.

Dairymen Look Forward To Feeding School

Two days of study of the largest single cost factor of milk production will occupy the attention of Steuben dairymen who on November 14 and 15 will attend the dairy cattle feeding school organized for the third year by the farm bureau.

Those who attend the sessions will learn the simple method of selecting the right feeds to make up a grain ration best suited for the kind of hay available.

Members of the group will study the feeding value of hay of different quality, will study the requirements of the dairy cow in the feeding of both roughage and grain. An important topic will be the growing of calves and young stock to develop the type of cow that will consume large amounts of roughage.

An important feature of the meeting will be the hay show in which there were sixty entries in 1938 and of which Van Wormer of Atlanta was the winner in the clover class, John Smith of Kanona first with mixed hay and J. W. Paddock of Bath showed the best alfalfa sample.

The place of the meeting will be announced in next week's Advertiser.

House Plants

Now that the beauties of the garden are on the wane, plant lovers are turning their attention indoors. House plants provide color and life to brighten dull winter days. Many house-plant gardeners, however, have a hard time because the dry atmosphere and high temperature of modern heated homes make indoor plant growing a difficult job.

Plant scientists have found that nearly all homes are kept at too high a temperature for plant growth. A temperature around 68 degrees should be warm enough, and if the plants are kept in the coolest part of the room, they should stay healthy.

There is no danger of getting the atmosphere too moist in the ordinary home. Since the heating system tends to dry out the air, moisture may have to be supplied. Some persons put pans of water on the radiators or registers to supply moisture. In extremely dry atmospheres, the plants may have to be grown in a shallow metal pan, filled with a wet layer of small pebbles, sand and sphagnum moss, or peat moss. Keep this material wet.

Light, too, is essential, but the amount varies with the different plants. Many ferns, for example, do not require the amount of sunlight that geraniums need.

Humidity, temperature and light are three of the most common pitfalls of the house-plant gardener. Watch them, and most of the troubles with growing plants indoors will disappear.

Hallowe'eners Do Little Damage In Addison

Maybe boys and girls are not as destructive as they used to be or else they are not as ingenius as they were for the damage throughout the community was not as widespread as in former years according to an informal survey male the morning following Halloween. True, excessive damage was done in a few instances, damage which cannot be easily repaired. This includes the destruction of plants and shrubs, for which there is no excuse. The moving of porch furniture was prevalent as usual but this usually returns to its owner within a few days.

The principal fun here seemed to be in soaping and waxing windows. Few minded the soaping for it was good to wash the windows anyway, but there was objection to wax for that is hard to get off. In a few instances, grit ground into the soap scratched some windows and spoiled them.

The youngsters went about the streets as usually, in spite of rain, in funny costumes and funny faces. Many stopped in various homes in groups and were fed or given things to take away with them. Cider, doughnuts, pop corn and pop corn balls, candy, cookies and other sweets liked by youngsters were freely distributed. And it was noticible that in cases where the youngsters were given, there the damage was slight.

Some chairs were noticed hanging on telephone poles, a barrel of tar was tipped over and drained, fences were uprooted and moved, other fences were bent, signs were removed and taken to other places, cabbages were stolen from gardens and thrown on porches and other things of like nature. No one was injured as far as can be learned.

One of the most comprehensive treasure hunts in the history was undertaken by a group of young people seeking a list of 40 items, some old and some quite rare. The winners secured 35 of the 40 items.

Many of the youngsters expressed the plea that there be some sort of parade with music, an entertainment and place where all the kids could get together. This will probably be done in the community next year, for representatives of some organizations have already expressed an idea in favor of such a plan.

Dish For This Week

Snappy fall evenings challenge homemakers to surprise their families with hot meal-in-one dishes that differ from those they have served the past summer. Carrots, stuffed with left-over meat, hit the spot with some families, and money is saved through use of economical carrots and rice. Here is a recipe suggested by the New York State College of Home Economics:

Stuffed Carrots

3 carrots
1/3 cup of ground boiled ham
1/3 teaspoon of celery salt
1 cup of cooked rice
1 tablespoon of butter
Pepper
Buttered bread crumbs

Scrub the carrots thoroughly and cook them until they are tender. Remove the skins, cut off the root end, and split the carrots in halves longwise. Combine the other ingredients and mix them thoroughly. Pile the stuffing on the carrot halves, sprinkle them with the buttered crumbs, and brown the carrots in a moderate oven (350-400 degrees Fahrenheit). Serve them with brown gravy or a cheese sauce.

With carrots stuffed with rice and ham, served with cheese sauce, the College suggests: graham muffins and grape jam, cabbage and green pepper salad, (topped with whipped cream, if desired), pumpkin pie, milk for the children, and coffee, tea or milk for the adults.

Associated Gas May Sell Into Niagara-Hudson

The New York Times on its financial page recently reported the probable sale of the New York State Electric and Gas Corporation by the Associated Gas Corp., to the Niagara Hudson Power Corp. The New York State Electric is the unit of the Associated Gas that supplies Addison, Canisteo, Hornell, Dansville, Corning, Bath and a wide area in Central New York state. The New York Times said:

"In furtherance of its plan of geographic integration under Section 11 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act, the Associated Gas and Electric Company has even gone so far as to enter into discussions with leading utility companies in New York state looking toward the sale of certain of its utility properties in the state, it was learned recently.

"The most important of these discussions under way, it is understood, centers around the sale of up-state properties to the Niagara Hudson Power Corporation. It is also believed that conversations have been held with officials of the Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., on the possible sale by Associated Gas of its Staten Island subsidiary, the Staten Island Edison Company.

"Associated Gas and Electric's main up-state property is the New York State Electric and Gas Corporation, which operates in the territory not served by the Niagara Hudson Power Corporation. In an amended plan of integration filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on September 26, the Associated management indicated that at that time negotiations were progressing for the exchange of certain of the operating properties of New York State Electric and Gas for other properties in New York State which, although not contemplated in the system's original plan of integration, "would be a desirable exchange to further geographically consolidate the operating properties of the company".

Recent German Visitor Gives War Experience

William Fritz, Elkland bakery owner, a native of Germany and former German soldier in the great World War, but now a naturalized American citizen recently visited the land of his birth. He went there to settle an estate. Friday he returned to America after nine days on the ocean. Sunday night he visited Emery Chase here.

Mr. Fritz stid that in returning he left by way of Rotterdam, Holland, October 17. The ship had 1200 people aboard, more than its normal passenger quota. For the first day or so the ship traveled slow because of mines, the speed being slower than a person's walk. Men were stationed along both sides of the ship and leaning way out and looking straight down into the water to try to discover possible floating and other mines. Each mine has several "arms" projecting outward and the slightest contact with any of these means a terrible explosion and sending of the ship to the bottom.

All port holes were closed. Rope ladders hung over the sides of the vessel at frequent intervals to allow people to quickly climb into small boats. When night came the ship stopped and cast anchor for the night for it was to dangerous to proceed. The next day a British naval officer came aboard. He knew the locations of the mines and piloted the ship through the dangerous waters.

Mr. Chase asked Mr. Fritz if the people of Germany are happy. He replied they are, but Mr. Chase opined there was a sigh in the word as it was spoken. He was asked if the British propaganda is effective in Germany and said it is. He replied anyone reading it is in for trouble and he could not bring any to America with him. Mr. Fritz feels allied sea supremacy will win the war and end Hitlerism.

The early biography of so many of the great musicians which reads, "He was born of poor parents and struggled throughout his student days", is not literally true of Albert Spalding, the world-famous violinist who will appear at Houghton College on Friday evening, November 3 at 8:15 P. M.

Spalding was born in Chicago of well-to-do parents. He inherited much of his musical genius from his mother, who was for a long time a soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra under Theodore Thomas. At seven he began playing the violin, and later his principal teachers were Chiti, the famous Flourentine master, Buitrago in New York, and Lefort in Paris.

Spalding is today one of the most popular of the world-famous violinists and plays every season from 60 to 90 concerts in the United States, besides an average of about 50 concerts a season in Europe.

CHAPTER CHATTER

The AHS classes in agriculture have been studying the culling and selection of poultry for egg production. A dozen birds were brought in by the various students, a chart was outlined and each student minutely studied each bird. The main factors studied were body condition, to determine if the bird was laying or not, molt of the bird, the bleaching appearance of the yellow color of the bird and the general conformation of the bird to determine its past production and its probable future use as a producer and breeder. The control of lice and mites was also studied.

Below are mentioned in detail each of the above mentioned factors. The main purpose of this study is to determine laying hens and those which are not laying.

Pigmentation

Pigmentation, or yellow color deposited around in different parts of the hen's body comes from different things which the hen may eat as yellow corn, green clovers, alfalfa and grasses. This yellow color deposits itself around in different places while the bird isn't laying. As the bird begins laying the yellow color gradually disappears from these places. Some more quickly than others. Most regularly from pliable parts of the bird.

Being among the most pliable parts of the bird's body the vent first shows signs of losing this yellow deposit. The yellow color goes to build up yolks for the eggs which the hen is about to lay or has laid The yellow color has most all disappeared from vent by the time the first or second egg has been laid.

The next in order comes the eyering. This is first noticeable around the upper lid edges. This usually occurs after nine or ten eggs have been laid.

In the ear lobes the yellow color disappears but isn't so noticeable as other places because the ear lobes are usually red. The yellow color disappears next from the beak from the base to the tip, very gradually as the blood flows much slower in the beak. The disappearence of color in the shanks is much slower and is a very good sign a hen has laid a large number of eggs throughout a long period of time. It disappears from the front first, the back next and the bottoms of the feet last of all.

Pigment Returns

When the ovary ceases to develop new yolks and production stops the fat globules which were going into the formation of the yolks are again available for deposition underneath the skin of the bird. As this deposition of fat takes place a yellowish cast is again taken on. The order in which various parts of the body yellow up again is exactly the same as the order of fading, normally the vent, the eyering, the earlobes, the back and lastly the shanks. The return is much more rapid than the disappearance.

Characters of Laying Hen

Culling is removing from the flock the hens which are not laying.

When a hen is in a laying condition her skin is soft and flabby. The vent is large, moist and full while the pelvis arch is wide spread. By wide spread we mean three fingers can be placed in the arch.

Pigmentation is another way the culler has of telling a laying hen. Before a hen begins to lay she has stored in her body fat making this yellow color. When a hen begins to lay the yellow color first leaves her vent. By the time she has laid six or eight eggs the yellow color is gone from the vent. The eyering is next and this will be gone after nine or ten eggs. The ear lobes lose color after 15 eggs. The beak is completely bleached of its yellow color when about 35 eggs are laid. One should not mistake the red found in beaks on Rhode Island Reds for pigment for this is horn color and does not fade out. The yellow color fades last from shanks and feet and indicates about 200 eggs or more have been laid.

After the hen has quit laying the yellow color returns to her body the same way as it leaves.

Every year the hen drops her old plumage and grows new feathers. She first drops the feathers from her head and grows new ones, then from her neck, breast, then abdomen and back. Then the feathers from the tail.

The order of molt of the different sections of a hen is very regular but the completion of the molt varies. The molt begins on the head and is followed by the neck, breast, fluffs, thighs, back, wing and tail. The tail molt is completed several weeks before the new wing feathers are fully in.

The order of the molt in the wing is regular. The wing of a hen is divided by a small feather, called axial feather, into two sections.

Pheasant hunting is a pleasant sport as many have found out. But it also has its drawbacks. And I'm sure the Rev. John Axtell can tell some of the latter. I understand that he saw a bird in a field on the river road east Friday afternoon, jumped quickly from his car, stole stealthily across the field, loading his gun enroute, and then raised his gun, sighted and what did he sight? A bantam that was just red like a pheasant. And I'm told the expression on his face was worth the price of a new gun, as his arms dropped to his side and he slowly made his way back to the car.

Judging by the rains of the past week, Addison and vicinity wells will be filled for the winter and also the ground will be well watered. Grass during the past few days has looked better than in most times during the summer with the rains.

During the past week I have had occasion to be seeking information on early Addison history. And the thought occurred to me that much of this information is scattered in various homes, unused and unnoticed. And the thought came to me that it would be a nice gesture on the part of those owning such information to donate it to the library where it will be kept in good condition, always on file and accessible to anyone who wanted it. This would be a fine memorial to anyone.

Farmers sure have their troubles. Attended a meeting Monday at which interested and interesting farmers exchanged ideas on feeding cattle during the coming winter. Several suggestions were offered and I'm sure some of those present took some good ideas home with them.

And speaking of that meeting reminds me again, that it seems the successful farmers attend all these meeting while many of those who really need the information and practices given do not attend. Of course there may be reasons. But it seems that with the information made available, at least one good idea will be money producing.

And I'm also reminded of the wealth of information given each week in the Future Farmer column of this paper. The column is written by the boys, based on their studies. It is really well worth reading.

Farmers are rejoicing over the rainfall of the past week for wells and streams filled and gave the ground a good soaking for crops.

And speaking of weather, the first real snow of the season fell Saturday night and whitened the hills hereabouts. Then the moon came out and shadows of trees cast dark reflections on the white ground and hills stood out in their white splendor. A night to really enjoy beauty.

Saturday September 11 will be Armistice Day. My dictionary says "Armistice-temporary cessation of hostilities" and that seems to be just about what happened, for some part of Europe has been continually at war since 1918. Americans can pray for peace, send communications to their representatives in legislative halls asking that peace measurer only be considered. We do not really appreciate how lucky we are to be on this side of the ocean. Over there countries are so small it reminds me of the intra-state fights our first congresses had to contend with in the early days of our own history. Read about it some time, it is worth while.

Only 45 shopping days to Christmas! Why not buy a present a week from now until Christmas! Then it will be done before you know it, providing you have the money to do any buying. And don't say you were not warned that it is coming, and then say later "My, I did not realize time was getting away so fast and here it is Christmas and no shopping done.

The Rambler owes a vote of thanks to Ruth Force for the Halloween scavenger hunt she promoted Tuesday night. The reason I am grateful is that one of the requirements was my signature. And having a sweet tooth, I offered to sell my signature for the well known mess of sweets. As a result I have chocolate milk shakes, sodas, coco colas and gum coming. I don't expect to collect it, but I'll have it coming anyway. And also I lost other things besides my signature for some of the contestants ransacked the house for China eggs, 1937 calendars, polka dot ties, tuxedo shirts, copies of "Christmas Carol" by Dickens and other bric-a-brac.

The Little Rambler stayed up way past bed time Halloween to watch the goblins, spooks and tramps coming to the door for pop corn and candy. He was not afraid of them and enjoyed his first really good Halloween. Over two pounds of pop corn were popped in the Rambler kitchen for the children, and many of them were well fed with supplies before they reached our home, for some of them had sacks of apples, pop corn balls, candy, doughnuts and other goodies.

By the way some one lost a folding gate, dark in color and may have same by calling our house or calling for it. The folding gate, used to keep a baby confined, was found on our porch.

COMMUNICATION

WAS THERE REASON TO STRIKE?

It seems to me, said a woman farmer, that there was real reason for the milk strike. We got 85 cents a hundred for our milk. Paid the hired man forty dollars a month, gave him house rent, fuel, potatoes, milk and we had to buy a lot of grain feed while the pastures were brown. Couldn't possibly pay our way even, no taxes due yet, but coming. What else was there to do?

Thus reason many even now and no wonder they felt that way in the excitement of the moment. They didn't know there was a better way. It is an honest opinion, but isn't it founded on insufficient knowledge and under a good bit of pressure by agitators? The trouble was in bad leadership at the head and either the same kind locally or local leaders excited or misinformed. Then they tied up with anything that promised a bit of help regardless of its real motives.

Therefore we need to urge our dairy farmers to keep posted. Yes, difficult to do especially with farm work pressing as it frequently cr usually is. I know one man who had made up his mind to go along what has proven to be the wrong road, but he hesitated long enough to call on a friend who had kept closer in touch with events. He hadn't talked five minutes when he saw the mistake he was making and changed at once his direction.

It cannot be too strongly urged that attention be given to actual facts. Keep a cool head and if the present laws can be kept in principle and properly upheld there will be no sound reason for a milk war any more that there was last August. Tath one cost a lot, not only in money but in bad feelings, unfriendly attitude and physical harm. Beware of such. H. H. L.

BECOMES STAPLE CROP

Cauliflower has become a staple crop with many market gardeners and truck farmers, but methods of planting, growing, packing and preserving the crop have changed since the earlier days. Motorized machines do much of the work that was done at first by hand.

Upstate New York normally produces about one-third of the state's crop which this year will be in excess of a million crates. Its farm value is also rated at about a million dollars. Seasonable rains in October greatly improved the crop this year, reports Professor M. C. Bond of the state college of Agriculture.

Home economists say that cauliflower, which at one time enjoyed only limited use, is now popular on nearly every table. Enough is now produced for widespread use.

Hay Shortage In This County Discussed Here

Lynn Bookout, assistant Farm Bureau Agent for Steuben County conducted a meeting on "Feeding for winter" in the Grange Hall here Monday afternoon. Dr. W. T. Crandall of Cornell was to have been the speaker but was detained elsewhere.

There were 30 farmers present. Mr. Bookout outlined what the Bureau had done to try to aid the farmers of Steuben County secure enough hay for the winter. One plan tried was to seek aid from the railroads in reducing freight on hay shipped into the area from outside the state. This failed. A plan of concentrated action was discussed but the varying hay desires and needs was felt to be a stumbling block to this plan. The plan of free seed was tried, not to compensate for that lost last spring but to give a good crop in 1940.

There was a discussion of using various aids such as potatoes, apples, corn and other home products. Farmers were also asked to list cows they have for sale with the Farm Bureau as requests from buyers are being received frequently, especially now, with the drouth on when many farmers will be reducing their herds.

Hay Needed

Places where hay can be purchased in adjacent counties have also been listed by the Farm Bureau and a list of them appears in the Farm Bureau News of this week. There was a discussion as to the advisability of buying hay from a dealer or direct from a farmer and many believed it cheaper to buy direct from a dealer. An estimated 40,000 to 50,000 tons will be needed in this county this year.

Agent Kushler of the Farm Security Administration for this district spoke of loans which may be secured for hay, feed and seed for 18 months with five per cent interest attached. The loan is only made to those who cannot borrow at banks or other places. The loan is secured by a mortgage on the cattle. Then at the end of 18 months if the loan cannot be raised a Rehabilitation Loan is made and the Administration makes recommendations as to the management of the farm and help supervise. Mr. Kushler answered questions relative to borrowing and administration.

Feeding School

Mr. Bookout outlined plans for the feeding school and hay exhibit to be held in Bath for two days later in November. Over 60 exhibits of hay were displayed last year, the first this plan was tried. More are expected this year. He spoke of the feeding school where the values of various feeds, grains and roughage is learned and the proper mixtures, the value of nutrients in roughage, calf feeding, silage and hay feeding, results of underfeeding and feeding individual cows will be considered.

County Gas Dealers Meet Tonight in Bath

The "Joshua policy" of gasoline taxation, which will take an average of $15 this year from the pockets of the car owners in New York State will be discussed at a meeting of the Steuben County Petroleum Industries Committee on Thursday, November 2, 1939, at Hotel Wagner, Bath, C. Walzer, chairman of the committee announced today.

"Prior to the depression motorists of New York State paid no taxes on gasoline. Up until 1929 the state built its roads with the registration fees", said Mr. Walzer, adding that registration fees are now yielding $50,000,000 a year in revenue, an amount exceeding what is actually spent for road construction and maintenance by the state. "In 1929 the state enacted a 2c gasoline tax, and shortly after imposed two additional 'temporary' 1c gasoline taxes. The federal government in 1932 added another 1c 'temporary' tax. Thus, of the 5c in taxes collected on a gallon of gasoline sold in New York State, 3c are 'temporary' emergency taxes.

"Our state legislature, acting like Joshua who commanded the sun and the moon to stand still while he coped with an emergency, has commanded the two "temporary" gasoline taxes to remain nearly a decade in the tax sky of the motorists, giving them a tanning year after year. Our organization feels that this Joshua policy of taxation is unsound and unfair, and should be ended". The organization will work to have all auto taxes go for highway building.

Officers for the coming year will be elected at the meeting, which will be attended by garage proprietors, gasoline retailers, automobile dealers and others interested in highway transportation.

Edward D. Cray, secretary of the New York Petroleum Industries Committee will be the principal speaker at the meeting.

Addison High Wins League Football Honors—Trims Avoca

The Knights tallied touchdowns in all four quarters here last Wednesday—Victory gives team leadership for second consecutive season—Passing of Louie Dominick big factor in Addison win.

Addison smothered Avoca High School footballers here last Wednesday night to the tune of 26 to 0 to win the league championship, having won three and tied one game. At Avoca the Knights were held to a 0 to 0 score but evened the count here by scoring a touchdown in each of the four quarters and making two conversions.

The game was called Wednesday instead of Friday owing to Avoca school being closed Friday due to a zone conference of teachers.

Passes proved the undoing of the Avoca squad. They could not make them click, while Addison made three of its four touchdowns on passes with Louie Dominick, Gladstone, Hargrave and Crawford doing the passing and receiving.

In the first period fans got a thrill when Crawford picked up a fumble and raced 30 yards, only to be called back by the umpire because he did not see the entire play. To make sure of the next play Dominick passed to Hargrave in the open, with no opponent near to touch him and Root converted for the extra point.

The second period touchdown was also scored on a long pass from Louie Dominick to Hargrave. However, all Addison passes did not click, for Avoca, alert in the backfield, intercepted two and also knocked down five. The brothers Dominick proved again their ability to pass and receive, for on the 30-yard Avoca line, Louie threw a long pass into the end zone to Andy for a perfect touchdown. Alert Avoca linesmen blocked the attempted kick for point after touchdown.

Only twice up to this point had Avoca been in scoring position and both times was forced to kick. Towner's kicks were long and well-placed. With but three minutes to go in the last quarter Addison kicked off to Avoca, and a series of fumbles ended with Crawford on the ball. Louie passed to Crawford for 20 yards and Crawford, being in the open ran for a touchdown. In this quarter the game became rather rough and Root was removed for unnecessary roughness. Addison was penalized 15 yards for roughness.

The lineup:

Avoca—Sharp, LE; Alderman LT; Soger, C ; Cragg, RT; Wightman, RE; Raymond, RH; Pack, LH; Towner, FB; Wallace, Q.

Addison — Hargrave, LE; Bovee, LT; Root, C; O'Connor, RT; A. Dominick, RE; Thomson, RH; Crawford, LH; Gladstone, FB; L. Dominick, Q.

Officials: Referee, Miller; umpire, Jamison, headlinesman, Croft.

TYPING HELPS

Condensed from an article on typing, an aid for students by Angelo Patri, as copied from the Buffalo Evening News:

"Children with faulty vision and faulty coordinations which yield slowly to treatment . . . it is for such children that typewriters should be used.

"Teach them to use the typewriter. Typewriting is useful to all who write to any extent.

"Typing demands a touch for each letter, and the mind calls that letter by name, and helps the hands put it in place.

"A father or mother on the lookout for a second-hand machine for their special needs can get one and every school can at least have one. Even one would help in the training of children whose writing powers are defeated by poor coordination."

Mrs. Elizabeth Gleason Dies in Massachusetts

Word has been received in Addison of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Gleason of Chelmsford, Massachusetts.

Mrs. Gleason was born January 29, 1855 in Lowell, Mass. In 1914 she came to Elkland where she resided for twenty-one years. After the death of her husband Fred D. Gleason, she returned to Lowell to live with her daughter.

The funeral was held from the Greig Funeral Home, Main street, Westford, Mass. The Rev. William E. Lewis pastor of the Westford churches officiated. Two of Mrs. Gleason's favorite hymns were sung, "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Abide With Me." There were many flowers and the services were attended by a large number of friends and relatives. Members of the Lowell Lodge of Rebekahs, of which Mrs. Gleason was a member, attended in a body. Interment took place in the family plot in Edson Cemetery, Lowell, where the Rev. Lewis read the committal prayer and the ritual of the Rebekah Order was conducted by Mrs. Ethel Leslie.

Mrs. Gleason is survived by one son by a former marriage, Benjamin Cole, of Chelmsford, three grandsons Fred and Ralph Cole and William Cogger of Chelmsford, four grand daughters Mrs. Grace Babbet of Lowell and Elizabeth, Marjorie and Carol Jean Herrington of Addison.

The section nearest the body is the secondary feather and the outer ones are primary. The primary feathers molt in regular order starting with the one nearest the axial feather and progressing out. Last feather to molt being the outermost primary.

The secondary feathers molt more irregularly. Commencing from the axial feather the 10-14 secondary feathers drop first. Then the second secondary feather is dropped and the molt progresses regularly towards the body until the ninth feather is dropped. After the ninth feather is dropped the first secondary and the axial feathers are dropped. The order of molt is essentially the same in all breeds but the leghorns molt more regularly than the heavier breeds.
